Maddalena archipelago is a group of islands in the North East from Sardinia throughout the Emerald Coast. Among the most important: La Maddalena, Caprera, Santo Stefano, Budelli, Santa Maria, Razzoli, Spargi and other smaller. The archipelago is an environmental purpose by the yachters through natural beauties and the uncontaminated water with its emerald colour.

Caprera is known because Garibaldi was hosted during the exile and it is connected with an artificial isthmus to "La Maddalena". In Santo Stefano stayed an USA submarine base.

The whole archipelago and its beaches, both the coast zone and the earthly one are included in the Maddalena Archipelago National Park since 1994.
