Palau is located in one of the most fantastic branches from the North-Eastern coast from Sardinia. Its coasts are artistically shaped by the nature evocating surreal and unique on earth depictions, like the gigantic bear that dominates whole the region. They are distributed from Porto Liscia to Capo d'Orso including Porto Pollo, Cala Trana, Punta Sardegna, then turning to the South and creating the Mezzoschifo harbor.

What to visit

It is possible to visit the archeological places that are in open country immersed in the Mediterranean spot that submerge completely these places and protect them from destruction like for example: Giants' grave.

Another destination could be Raphael port. In the 60s the count Raphael Neville elects the Agincourt bay like his residence and as well from his entourage. This situation shakes the local chronicle with lots of parties about all still talk and it turns Palau into a known tourist attraction.

In the east from Palau port, in a few minutes, you can arrive to the famous rock (Bear rock) a granite hill of 122 meters, shaped in time by the atmospheric agents in a bear who looks over the sea.

Military forts are a tourist attraction as well. The strategic importance of Bonifacio's mouths was necessary until the end of the XVIII century, therefore the Savoy built an efficient defensive system constituted by many forts erected in panoramic position and camouflaged between the rocks and the Mediterranean spot.
